Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was agreed to if an agreement was reached, or any other comments: In regards to Claim 21, Applicant explained that a recitation in regards to the stomach does not necessarily equivocate to the adomen, since the abdomen includes more than just the stomach. Examiner understood the describe differentiation but explained that further search and consideration would be needed to determine if such limitation (tube through abdominal wall) was not taught by the prior art. Applicant further explained that it was felt that the positive recitation of "obtaining a desired weight loss" was different than maintaining a desired weight. However, Examiner explained that "desired weight loss" was open to a broader interpretation than that which applicant was presenting and would include maintaining a weight (especially considering that the average person naturally flucuates between weights. Additionally, the recitation of repeating the extraction step was considered to be taught since the repeated extraction has to occur in order for a bulimic patient to maintain a desired weight. Examiner further pointed to the preamble of Claim 31 which recites "a method of achieving and maintaining weight loss," for a relation between weight loss and weight maintenance. In regards to Claim 31, Applicant inquired as to the recitation of "no longer obese" and if this overcame prior art. Examiner noted that, although the claim does not positively recite an obese patient prior to "no longer obese," the recitation of "a method of treating obesity" in the preamble may be enough to implicitly require such limitation. Additionally, Applicant felt that the discussion of obesity and bulimia on pages 116-117 would not result in a reasonable jump from bulimia to obesity. Examiner disagreed because prior art was considered to make an explicit link between obesity and bulimia and, as a result, one of ordinary skill would be able to make such jump linking the two eating disorders. Thus, Examiner stated that, in light of the arguments presented during the interview, further consideration would be needed to determine if the prior art still rendered the claim obvious. Examiner suggested Applicant make any desired amendments and present any arguments that they still had in their response to the outstanding Office Action .
